Type of Work: Financial Services / Investment Management
Job Location: Morristown, NJ
Job Title: Research / Securities Analyst: Petroleum Industry

Job Description:
Candidates should possess three to ten years of oil and gas experience or an advanced degree related to petroleum engineering. Preferred experience includes petroleum and reservoir engineering, production and development drilling, enhanced oil recovery operations, unconventional gas extraction, and proven reserve assessment. The position will require qualitative and quantitative analysis of both industries and companies within the energy sector. Pay is commensurate with experience.

In addition to experience (real and/or classroom) in petroleum engineering, candidates should possess a strong work ethic and willingness to learn. While we do not expect all candidates to be intimately familiar with securities analysis, due to the nature of the position, an interest in the financial markets is required.

Our Company:
W. R. Huff Asset Management Co., L.L.C is an investment management firm based in Morristown, New Jersey, specializing in high yield corporate bonds and private equity investments.

We invest in a select number of sectors, comprised of: (i) media / communications; (ii) publishing; (iii) healthcare; (iv) chemicals; (v) paper, forest products and packaging; (vi) food retailing, distribution and branded food products; (vii) energy and natural resources; (viii) environmental; and (ix) defense and aerospace.

Our research process is based on the belief that research begins at the industry level; that a detailed analysis of a company can only be done after one understands the underlying fundamentals of the industry that company operates in. Thus, we seek sector specialists to bolster our analytical capabilities. The emphasis will be on understanding the qualitative drivers of an industry and how these factors converge to drive the quantitative factors that determine a company’s intrinsic value. Contact with top-level executives and industry experts is certain, therefore a high level of maturity, poise and independence is necessary. Depth of knowledge is valued over breadth of knowledge. Analysts can skip the years of mindless number crunching usually associated with new-hire roles at traditional Wall Street firms and begin developing valuable industry expertise while focusing on challenging and interesting investment opportunities.

Our People and Our Culture:
The culture is informal and work is challenging, but richly rewarding. Excellent oral and written communication skills are critical. While there is a strong emphasis on teamwork, a substantial amount of individual autonomy is afforded.
